

The feeling remains that God is on the journey too.

- St. Teresa of Avila

remember vividly - your graduation, the first day at work, your wedding, the moment you held your first born, his or her first school day, and others. But there would have been also moments, such as, the countless arguments with your spouse, a family member or a friend, or moments when you were hurt. Painful moments.

Things change and we change. Our life is like a constant spinning wheel, perpetually on a journey. Some stops are beautiful and are happily seared into our memory. Others are just too painful. Most journeys are made alone, but occasionally we have good companions. Our companions may have been our parents, grandparents or guardians or our friends. It may be the soul mate who knows what your next word would be before you even say it.

There's no permanency in our state - our joys and pain, love and disappointments. Some emotional states stay longer with us than others. Some hurts stay because we cling to them. We cannot undo the past nor can we go back. We can, however, learn to live these events, for example, either on a positive note or allow the negative ones to affect us. Whatever it is, that is the choice of our journey.

Jesus gave us an assurance when he talks about life's journey, that is, what we do on the journey will decide the end. In other words, our daily life choices will determine our final destination, where we will either be with him or without him. However there is one constant that he offers us. He promises to accompany us, to walk with us through the path laid before us. This offer is guaranteed because God's love for us is forever. All else may change but His love is constant.

To agree to walk with Him, however, is to identify with Him and to journey on the path leading to the lost, lonely, the little and least. It is the path on which we choose to perpetuate life, to give our life to others like Jesus did. It is reassuring as we know that the world may end one day but we don't need to be fearful for we do not walk alone. †
